

Dear ENGAGE Members,

I am Dr. Zohar Magen, a veterinary doctor by training with a thesis in neuroembryology, who shifted focus to women's cancers over a decade ago by joining a global pharmaceutical company in the Medical Affairs department. During that time, I led medical activities in the field of gynecological oncology, including the launch of immunotherapy and the introduction of chemotherapy and PARP inhibitor combination strategies. This experience provided me with a deep understanding of this therapeutic area and the immense value of collaboration between the pharmaceutical industry, clinicians, and patient advocates. Although I am no longer part of the pharmaceutical industry, I continue to apply this perspective to strengthen cooperation across sectors in the service of patients.

Driven by a strong commitment to advancing women's health, I joined HaBait Shel Bar nearly three years ago, where I serve as a dedicated board member and co-founded the HaBait Shel Bar Research Institute. Through this work, I have led initiatives focused on patient experience and outcomes research, seeing firsthand how evidence-based advocacy can raise awareness, inform policy, and improve care for women with gynecological cancers.

As part of the ENGAGE Executive Group, I would be honored to contribute my multidisciplinary experience—spanning research, advocacy, and industry insight—to advance ENGAGE's mission. I aim to strengthen research collaboration across Europe, foster partnerships with key stakeholders, and lead initiatives that enhance patients' quality of life and well-being.

Sincerely,

Zohar Magen
